Women's Day 2008: Celebrating Our Achievements

International Women's Day is a time to celebrate past achievements and look forward to building on those successes, say the International Coalition for Women in Shooting and Hunting (WiSH).

WiSH Chair Dr Samara McPhedran said "Women's Day is a time to reflect on the inequalities and injustices that exist around the world, but it is also a day for hope and positive recognition of what women have achieved."

"This year, we are using Women's Day to draw attention to the importance of women working together across different backgrounds and beliefs, to deliver improvements in the lives of women everywhere."

"In the months to come we will be promoting the value of women from metropolitan and rural areas sharing ideas and learning from one another's often very different life experiences, as well as continuing to work towards empowering women."

WiSH supporters will be taking part in a number of Women's Day activities, from marches through to fundraising events.
